

LATEST NEWS FROM LONDON.

THE REJECTION OF BOTH THE IRISH BILLS DEEMED PROBABLE.

London, May 8.—The all-important question for true friends of Ireland to consider to-day is what action to take after the defeat of Mr. Gladstone in a vote upon the second reading of the Home Rule bill. Having defeated the principle of home rule in the American press years ago, I claim the right to speak firmly when addressing the recent eleventh-hour enthusiasm as an eyewitness behind the scenes at the formation of the Gladstone Cabinet. I warned your readers weeks ago of the danger of relying upon one man's power to accomplish what has been accomplished by the union of the political ideas of the British people, or even of the Liberal party in England and Scotland. Conversation to-day with some of the most important leaders of the radical wing of the Liberal party convinces me of the imminent probability of the rejection of both bills.

The determined hostility of the Scottish advanced guard is largely influential in this direction, and the activity of the Protestants, especially the Free Presbyterians in Ulster, contribute to formidably the substratum of essentially anti-Catholic feeling against the measures. Much more than the interposition of the Whigs, and it is generally admitted by the Premier's closest Parliamentary backers that the present Government whips are lamentably deficient in the tact and energy necessary to rally and hold the wavering line.

There is excellent reason to believe that no real friction because of the interposition of the Whigs, and it is generally admitted by the Premier's closest Parliamentary backers that the present Government whips are lamentably deficient in the tact and energy necessary to rally and hold the wavering line.

Count Dillon watched the interests of the Commercial Company at the cable conference in London. The French Government, who seems reluctant to release the Commercial Company from the stringent terms of the contract, but the other Governments are apparently wholly indifferent, and with the exception of Great Britain, have not instructed their representatives. England, I am informed, intends to resolutely maintain the strict letter of the contract. The French Government, who seems reluctant to release the Commercial Company from the stringent terms of the contract, but the other Governments are apparently wholly indifferent, and with the exception of Great Britain, have not instructed their representatives.

The funeral of Paul Forbes, to attend which I visited Paris on Monday, was a simple and touching ceremony, performed by an American clergyman, the Rev. Dr. Morgan, and was witnessed with unaffected sympathy by a large circle of friends.

Proceedings, it is said, are about to be begun by a Frenchman who bears a famous name to obtain a divorce from an American woman. The case is of some importance, as it is the first time that a Frenchman has obtained a divorce from an American woman.

Minister Phelps may, if he likes, tell of a neat little box on the ear which he earned from one of these dames on the occasion of the opening ceremony of the Colonial Exhibition by rashly intermeddling with her while she was in the act of putting on her hat.

Whom Mr. Phelps, who was standing near, really interfered by saying: "What's that? What's this I hear about a republic?" To whom, with an airy and intimate sweep of her disdainful little head and an annihilating glance, her transatlantic ladyship replied: "Oh, it's you, is it? How is Mrs. Phelps?"

Approves of the Exhibition. I am not aware of what report has been cable regarding the popular feeling here toward it, but no one could scan the crowds through which the royal carriages drove without being struck with the aspect of almost sullen hostility with which the faces of the men of the absurd pomp of the British monarch and his entourage, which once, perhaps, so easily charmed the minds of the people, but now only provokes a smile from them as it provokes a smile from the educated classes; and if the manifesto in which Gladstone has done the Premier little credit in London, it is not surprising that the same feeling should be manifested in the West.

RAIDS ON THE ANARCHISTS.

ANOTHER BATCH OF THE REDS LOCKED UP IN CHICAGO JAILS.

Digging up the secrets of the Revolutionists—Bombs, dynamite, and dynamite found in their drill rooms—The Police have seized a large quantity of dynamite and other explosive materials in the drill rooms of the Anarchists in Chicago. The police have also seized a large quantity of dynamite and other explosive materials in the drill rooms of the Anarchists in Chicago.

A key turned in the lock, a light flashed through one of the little grimy windows, and the door swung slowly on its hinges. A man with dishevelled hair and wearing a suit of red underclothing thrust his nose out of the crevice. He saw the little star of the Lieutenant flash in the light of a street lamp. He screamed with fright and then tried to close the door. He was too late. The shoulders of the officer were visible through the window.

The feeling Anarchist was Avere Deink, a Bohemian, a man of about thirty years of age, a man of a military company of Anarchists. He was found with a revolver, and they were under his pillow. One was of French manufacture. The other was self-cooking and of American make. Both were of large calibre, and were loaded.

In another portion of the house Hynek Deink and Franz Novok were found in bed with their arms and legs bound over their heads. They were told to dress, which they did. They were then taken to the police station. They were then taken to the police station.

STORMED THE BOX OFFICE.

Barley Campbell Wanted Fifty Tickets for Last Night—Met Got 'Em, Too.

Barley Campbell's Fourteenth Street Theatre closed last night after the performance of "Woman against Woman," by Edie Blaisell and her company. The theatre was crowded, and the week had been a prosperous one, but the theatre was none the less obliged to close its doors.

There were other complications which rendered Mr. Harrier's lot as receiver anything but a happy one. Since his return to town ten days ago Barley Campbell, it is said, has been very busy. He has been very busy.

Mr. Campbell seems to have a very vague idea of the extent of his liabilities. He refers to them as "a little thing," and says that he is not at all worried by them. He is not at all worried by them.

GEORGE DEFEATED IN THE MIDDLE-DISTANCE RACE.

Myers Late Him Have the Glory in the Middle-Distance Race. Madison Square Garden was lighted up last night for the second race between L. E. Myers, our boss runner, and W. G. George, the English champion. The first big race of the middle-distance championship of the world has been run on Saturday and gathered in by Myers and George had to win the three-quarter mile or give up all hope of either of being champion or of lugging off the stake of $2,000. It was a big thing to see, and a crowd crowded in worthy of the race that was to be run. It paid a good price to get in, packed the big building, and got the worth of the money in a long time before the big event had come off.

There were bicycle races, full of men struggling honestly and conscientiously to get their heads down lower than their knees. There were desperate sprints, in which young men around their teeth and wagged their heads sideways to add to their speed. Everything was a noise, a confusion, a little bit of a madhouse. The crowd was so packed that it was impossible to get in. The crowd was so packed that it was impossible to get in.

FAILURE OF THE MOROCCO STRIKE.

It Has Cost the Men $70,000 and They Have Gained Nothing.

Wilmington, Del., May 8.—It looks now as though the morocco strike, which was inaugurated on March 31, will come to an end within a few days. The strikers, who were promised $5 and $6 per week during the strike, have received in most instances only $5 or less. There has been dissatisfaction for some time, and within the past two or three days letters, undoubtedly from Knights, have appeared in the newspapers, asking for arbitration. One letter was from one of the morocco assemblies.
